

The Court here adjourned to 2.30 p.m.

On the Court resuming the examination the witness continued.—The next day, J. Abdul Devraj and the second defendant came to enquire to see me. Devraj told me that he was sorry he could not get the money. He was unable to sleep through thinking of the matter as he had promised to do what he could. The second defendant said, "Do not have downheartedness."

On the same day the first defendant, came to see me alone. He asked me if I had been to see me. I told him he had, he had been running everywhere to try

THE QANTON EXCITEMENT.

According to the last accounts the excitement at Canton consequent upon the rumours concerning the distribution of the mysterious white medicine has subsided; and affairs are again considered likely to proceed quietly. The danger which was threatened being now over, money, as is too frequently the case, are disposed to consider that it never had any existence, and to blame H.B.M. Acting Consul for having paid more attention than necessary to what turn out to be idle rumours. Experience, however, does not warrant this view. It is considered likely that the Chinese authorities may be, however little effect they may ultimately produce, nobody responsible for the safety of his countrymen and for the maintenance of order, can afford to give, no heed to them. They may mean nothing or they may mean everything. A breath may put out the spark of discontent, but a breath may also kindle it. It is therefore a prudent course, and while we know this to be the case, we are aware that it is completely beyond our power to ascertain whether a given rumour or excitement comes within the one category or within the other. What is also of great importance, we have too much reason to believe that the Chinese officials themselves, even when willing to act with perfect freedom, can ascertain what it is necessary for them to adopt severe measures to put down a threatened rising, or that they will be able to apply the required remedies when they are desirous to do so. Under such circumstances, upon what can we and ought we to rely? Should we follow the system adopted by the Chinese themselves of hoping for the best, and doing nothing until our eyes are opened to unpleasant realities, while everything indicates that we should be up and doing; should we adopt upon a masterly inactivity or should we adopt such simple measures of precaution as are within our power, and be prepared for any event that may arise? It is urged in favour of the former course that it is undesirable to irritate and excite the Chinese, and that it is unwise to irritate the officials, and by being an indication that we fear an outbreak, is likely on that very account to bring one about. But it is to the irritation we may safely add; Lord Almonstons dictum, that it is an abuse of to repeat that, when you employ means to prevent danger you are provoking that danger and irritating the party against whom the means are employed. As a result, the more the precautions, the more the danger. This exists, the precautions can have no effect but in inspiring confidence in the party in whose favour they are made; if, on the other hand, there be a disposition to attack, that disposition is sure to be lessened in proportion as the chances of success are diminished. As thus, the Mandarins to whose co-operation we have a right to look, are willing to exert their power towards our protection, their ability to do so effectively will not be lessened, and the increased confidence in them will be a further inducement to make away, by a timely demonstration of readiness for action, that their disregarding the commands of their officials will be attended with serious results to themselves. If inclined to defy the Mandarins, as we do so frequently the case, they will be brought to reason when they find a practical demonstration that such defiance of authority may lead to serious consequences to themselves and to their fellow citizens; while as respects the Mandarins, if they are disposed to delay taking action, they will be brought to see that any further excitement will throw upon them a burden which they are not prepared to bear, it is demonstrated by long-continued experience that a timely indication to them of the effects which will be brought about by to say that, when you employ means to prevent danger you are provoking that danger. The danger is not prevented, and the precautions may be taken. If no animosity exists, the precautions can have no effect; by inspiring confidence in the party in whose favour they are made; if, on the other hand, there be a disposition to attack, that disposition is sure to be lessened in proportion as the confidence is increased. In the case of the Mandarins to whose co-operation we have a right to look, are willing to exert their power towards our protection, their ability to do so effectually will not be lessened, but increased, by the fact that the unfriendly classes are made aware by a timely demonstration of our confidence in them, that they are in the commands of their officials will be attended with serious results to themselves. If inclined to defy the Mandarins, as we too frequently the case, they will be brought to reason when they find a practical demonstration that such defiance of authority may have the most disastrous consequences to themselves and their fellow citizens, while the Mandarins, if they are disposed to delay, taking vigorous action in the hope that any given excitement will blow over, it is demonstrated by long-continued experience that a timely indication to them of the serious result will be brought about by their inaction in the best manner possible, by inducing them from their lethargy. To take steps for our own protection is no act of hostility towards the respectable Chinese or the officials, who if they lack the moral courage to put down disturbances, are certainly likely to suffer very severely if an outbreak actually occurs. It is not to be feared that the officials are disposed to act with hostility against the interests both of China and of foreign nations. It is hostile to the rowdies and ruffians constituting the mob, who are not the class of men whom we need be especially anxious to conciliate when they resort to violence. It is to be feared that they are prone to temporise with them, and this habit frequently encourages them to commit outrages. If we imitate the Chinese practice, and look for the same results; but if we show that, though undesirous in any way to resort to force for defensive purposes, we are nevertheless prepared to meet them on their own whenever occasion shall require, we shall make the officials the more active in their endeavours to control the people, and the tions and prejudices. But it is her to return to endeavour gradually to re-internal government so that she hereafter be able to accord the same of residence, trade, and protection which accorded by all other civilized countries, thus become entitled to enter into the of nations by being able to establish relations with foreign countries and international commerce, which in the day form an essential part of the nations which will entitle any people the privileges, or enable them to the position, of an independent and nable nation.

PAUL'S COLLEGE, HONGKONG.
(Daily Press, August 3rd.)
 It is asked whether the Bishop of Vic-who so admirably fills the Apostolic if not of preaching the word to every , at least of going to all parts of the and introducing into it, for considera-of HongKong, the services, when known as St. Paul's College? That institution seems to be a thorough model of HongKong institutions generally,—all "out-. The building is admirable; the mitre the gate imposing; but where are the as which the foundation was designed support? Can anyone in HongKong say was the nature of the original trust which the College was founded? To the of the information at present the ob-was to secure an advanced English eduto Chinese youth, and even to govern-provided they showed sufficient assue tudy. The College was, in fact, intended a College; but by some very peculiar instances, it gradually came down to be a d, and finally an empty building, or more actually speaking, a kind of ecclesiastical house. Bishop SMITH, who took an at interest in the College, had numerous students educated in a way which some decidedly hindered the reputation and credit of the institution,—but it is not for the purpose of circumstances, at the time Bishop ALLEN down, the pupils had come down to merely a few boys; and these it was con-ed would be well enough cared for if they sent to the Government Schools. Whether there are any pupils now, we are not certain, but at all events the building is sufficiently cleared of superfluities to be ready to receive the Government school (when here) and the Colonial Chapel for the time being; the presence of ecclesiastics, and the golden mitre over the door, being now apparently all that is to show that the building is a College. We ask, does this matter stand? Is this intention of the founders of the institution? If it is, well and good, but if not, might it not be taken to bring it back to its original design?

Together, there is a great want of something to give a little stirring up to the ecclesiastical matters in the Colony, which has got into a very strange state of con-would be well enough cared for if they went to the Government Schools. Where-there are any pupils now, we are not certain, but at all events the building sufficiently cleared of superstitious influences to recognize places of abode for the (Chinese) and the Colonists Chaplains, for the time being; the presence of ecclesiastics, and the golden mitre over their heads, being now apparently all that is to show that the building is a College.

We ask, does this matter stand? Is this intention of the founders of the institution, if it is, well and good, but if not, might some steps be taken to bring it back to its original design? Together, there is a great want of something to give a little stirring up to the ecclasi-astical matters in the Colony, which has got into a very strange state of confusion. The resignation of the Rev. Mr.
Aronz, considering the very short time he was stopped here, was, to be regretted, but the result is that the present acting Colonial Chaplain has been asked to work upon his shoulders which would be anywhere, and must be almost killing him under such as this. Bishop Aronzo, independant upon, or very good authority, has at last expressed his intention of resigning, so before long we may probably have a Bishop and a new regime. The present therefore, a very suitable time for the resignation of them who were intended to guard St. Paul's College, it is to be thought, so some definite information may be coming, before it is too late to bring the institution back to conformity with the intentions of its founders. That a suitable change in Hongkong would be a desirable one very few can doubt, and it has been for many years past, that "these ones" have been intended to stand, and be allowed to stand upon their proper share into a name at all local habitation.

HONGKONG.

Considerable public attention has been attracted by a case of an unusual character, the case being investigated by the Police Commissioner, a Chinese magistrate, being brought at the request of the Attorney-General against Abdul Moosa, Noor-Mahomed Ali, and Shiek Mahomed, Indian traders at Bombay, on the basis of a charge that they conspired to defraud the bank of Hongkong, in connection with the bankruptcy proceedings which have been going on in the Chief-Justice Chambers, in re 'Abdul Moosa. The charge was in substance that the defendants had conspired to defraud the bank by selling to certain Chinese, who had given to 'Abdul-Rahman, that they had given a 'guarantee' against him, whereas it was alleged the prosecution, the fact was that 'Abdul-Rahman was not a partner in the bank, and that the firm was only a clerk upon a salary, belonging to the firm of the defendants, who were the agents of Fazel-Mahomed & Co. of Bombay, a house of considerable funds, and consequently the clerk of Rahman was also agent of the Bombay bank, the object being to defeat the just claims of the creditors. The matter when brought before Mr. May, the Police Magistrate, on the 25th ultimo, was very lengthy, the defendants' counsel trying irregularity of the form of the procedure, and closed the mouths of the three defendants, and in consequence the case was referred to civil proceedings now pending; it was pressed upon the Court, the propriety of civil cases being concluded, before any proceedings as these were instituted. The Chief-Justice decided that the case was a civil one, and the matter being brought before the time short, the Chief Justice decided that civil suits should be held over till the civil prosecution was concluded. The case is now being now investigated at the Court.

Geographic communication was successfully established between Hongkong and Saigon by the submarine cable of the Siam and Siam Submarine Company's line on the 24th ultimo.

considerable public attention has been attracted by a case of an unusual character, the case being investigated at the Police Office, inasmuch as a conspiracy, which brought at the request of the Attorney-General, against Abdul Moosa, Noord-Mahomed, and, Shiek Mahomed, Indian traders at Canton, was, on the 24th ultimo, brought to light in connection with the bankruptcy proceedings which have been going on in the Chief-Justice Chambers, in re Abdul Moosa. The charge was in substance that Abdul Moosa and his associates had conspired to defraud certain Chinese, who had given to Abdul-Rahman, that they had given a "guarantee" against him, whereas it was alleged in the prosecution, the fact was that Abdul Moosa had given a "guarantee" to Abdul-Rahman, who was only a clerk upon a salary, belonging to the firm of the defendants, who were the agents of Fong-Mahomed & Co. of Bombay, a house of considerable funds; and consequently their clerk Abdul-Rahman was the agent of the Bombay firm; the object being to defeat the just claims of the creditors. The matter was brought to the notice of Mr. Justice, on the 25th ultimo, was argued at very great length, the defendants' counsel urging irregularity of the form of the procedure, and showed the affidavits of the three defendants, which in substance were, that the case should be put to rest, and the proceedings now pending; the prosecution, on the other hand, the propriety of the case being concluded, before any further proceedings be instituted, the court has decided to postpone the case for a day, and the matter being brought before the next Court, the Chief Justice held that the defendants should be held over till the next Court, the prosecution being accordingly being now investigated at the Court.

Telegraphic communication was successfully established between Hongkong and Saigon by the Submarine Company's ship on the 24th.

An accident has to be recorded in the case of Mrs. Barros, a Portuguese lady, from Macao, who, while bathing, was thrown overboard, and, after struggling for some time, was rescued by the shifting of a swimming-belt. A woman, Portuguese gentleman, who endeavored to rescue her, was unfortunately also thrown overboard.

The examination of a portion of the witnesses of an collision between the British barque Albatross and the Messagier-Maritime steamer, but has place at the Vice-Admiralty Court. The Albatross is of Hong Kong, is bound for New York, and was returning home to the case. The claim is for $2,000.

(From a Correspondent.)

On the 25th of the month, the excitement at Canton, caused by the rumors that poisonous pills and powders were distributed to the people, is subsiding. It is partly attributable to the action of the Government, who several days ago, issued orders that all energetic measures were required, to the arrival of an English gun-vessel, must have shaken the confidence of the people, and excited the Chinese. The action of the people would at last result in the destruction of the foreign settlement. The temper of the populace was at one time and may still be such that a dozen regiments could have been sent to quell the disorders in the direction of what they have considered revenge, and a very occurrence at the right moment might have been followed by the burning and destruction of the settlement. With the exception of a mile of the settlement a man was beaten to death by an infuriated mob, because he was unacquainted with the cause of poisoning a man. No attempt was made to resist the accusation. A coincidence of circumstances was against the victim, and that sufficient. This shows how little the good sense of the authorities, if they have any, is able to survive the life of a mob, and that they could stir in favor of, they are much on their proclamations, which, being, an issue of a day or two, and the people are to be kept for want of being new. It is probable that matters

ENGLISH AND CHINESE DICTIONARY, WITH THE
PUNTI AND MANDARIN
PRONUNCIATION.

An Anglo-Chinese Dictionary, by the Rev.
W. L. BROWN, is published at the Daily Press Office, Hongkong.

FOR BOOKS and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have of late years been compelled to coin to express the numerous inventions in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of civilization has imposed upon them, are here given in Chinese. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature.
Both the Court and Pundit pronunciations are given, the Chinese characters carefully marked on the left principle of the Chinese. The typography displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast economy of space, obviating a clearness not previously attained, and dispensing with those extraneous characters Chinese publications.
The scope of the work is so great, and its utility so extensive, that it is a reference to its pages enables a person who understands English to communicate effectively with natives who understand nothing but Chinese. In this respect the work will be found indispensable to all who are engaged in China, and to the natives themselves it explains subjects fully, with which very few in-China it cannot but be invaluable occasionally.
It comprises upwards of two thousand large quarto pages.
